G20 meet makes headway on debt relief

"It is important for us to emphasise that the vulnerable countriesare looking up to the G20 to find some solution whereby their debt stress can be relieved and many of them have been waiting for a very long time. So if we could arrive after so much negotiation at a common position of dealing with that, I think the G20 is now standing up to meet the challenges of debt stress, which many countries are facing," she said.

Four countries including Sri Lanka will benefit from the debt resolution. According to the statement, the adequacy of IMF quotas will be revisited and process of the Fund's governance reform will continue. On the issue of the international coordination on tax policies, the G20 ministers said they remained committed to "swift implementation of the OECD/G20two-pillar international tax package."

remaining issues so that the Multilateral Convention can be signed in the first half of 2023. The meeting also decided, endorsing a proposal from India, to ask the IMF and the FinancialStabilityBoard(FSB)to bring outa joint technical paper on crypto-assets. New Delhi envisages to synthesise the macroeconomic and regulatory perspectives of crypto-assets by the next meeting of G20 finance ministers and central bank chiefs in October 2023.

Yellen: India to be key beneficiary of US $200-bn fund

"Overall, the US aims to mobilise $200 billion through 2027 for PGII, and we look forward to partnering with India to continue investing in its future,"Yellen said, addressing a roundtable with US and Indian tech business leaders.

The meeting was attended by Infosys co-founder Nandan Nilekani, Wipro executive chairman Rishad Premji, the country head & managing director at Foxconn International Holding Josh Foulger, IBM's Sandip Patel, Intel's Nivruti Rai and GE's Vikram Rai, among others.

TAISEI ONCHO INDIA PRIVATE LIMITED

"Through the partnership for global infrastructure and investment, or PGII, we are investing in digital technologies that will drive inclusive, resilient growth in India," Yellen told the tech leaders.

Nilekani said Infosys hired 7,000 fresh graduates this year in US. "Our aim is to pick young, talented people, including from community colleges, and invest in their training,"he said, adding that 25,000 workers were hired locally in the US in the past six years.

Seeking further tech partnerships with the US, Nilekani said Infosys is the vendor for India's massive direct and indirect digital tax systems. "We estimate that the tax gap in the US over the next decade will be S7 trillion. We are not collecting the taxes that are due under our tax laws and we are making a major investment in technology to bridge that gap," Yellen said responding to Nilekani.

Yellen said the US is advancing an approach called "friendshoring" to bolster the resilience of supply chains."We are doing this by strengthening integration with our many trusted trading partnersincluding India. We are seeing progress; as an example, technology companies like Apple and Google have expanded their phone production in India," she said.

From June 1, WhatsAppwill roll out a three-category pricing system for businesses for business-initiated conversations. While currently, it charges a flat ₹0.48 per conversation, it is set to change and will be cost based on the category the business chooses, as per media reports. The three categories are: Utility for informing customersaboutan ongoing transaction, marketing for offers and overall promotions, and a third – authentication to authenticate users.

While utility messages will cost ₹0.3082 per conversation, for marketing messages, a business will have to fork out ₹0.7265 per conversation. There is another category, authentication, for which the price is yet to be announced. WhatsApp Business, which aids businesses' conversations with customers, declined to comment on the details.

Not just WhatsApp Business, but Twitter might also become costlier for businesses. The micro-blogging site might start charging businesses $1,000 to keep their gold checkmark, as per an internal document seen by The Information. There will be an additional cost of $50 per month for each affiliated account.

WhatsApp's sister apps Instagram and Facebook are also rolling out Twitter-like feature on a pilot basis in Australia and New Zealand before launching in other geographies. The feature, called Meta Verified, can be bought at $11.99 (approximately ₹990) on web and $14.99 (approximately ₹1,240) on mobile. The feature, however, will not be available to businesses.

So, will pricier WhatsApp Business and social media platforms disincentivise businesses? "We have been great believers of WhatsApp. So even though for the business it is an investment, it is worth it for customer experience and convenience, said Bajaj of Sirona Hygiene. "However, the more commercialised these platforms get, chances are they may get intrusive for the customers. So, WhatsApp would have to be careful in their pricing and their strategy of opening it up for businesses for marketing and other purposes,"headded.

However, it is more complicated for subscription for the blue checkmark. "Till now, brands' popularity and the blue tick on Twitter has been an 'earned' mark. Now, that credibility would become a commodity and anyone with money, irrespective of how good the business actually is would get it. Personally, I think it shouldn't be done. Businesswise too, Twitter charging for giving a blue tick would be fair only if there is legit due diligence in verifying the business and making the process for giving the blue fair and open," Bajaj explained.

said, "Twitter moving from its credibility-based model to a revenue model for its tick system is not the best idea. This is the samewithawardsbeingbought with money, the credibility of a jury assessing the nominees is what makes an award worth receiving,"she said.

Meanwhile, WhatsApp Business remains important for businesses and they are not looking at decreasing engagementany time soon, especially as it better aids a two-way conversation with consumers. But with added costs, they are also looking at more features to aid businesses. "WhatsApp has been a great medium to get direct access to customers and we hope that with cost, there will be value-add in terms of features and user experience. We as a team would continue to use these platforms aggressively for customer communication and promotion considering its penetration and ease of use," said Sneh Jain, cofounder and managing director of The Baker's Dozen Zouk'sKrishnakumar,too,sees the addition as a better way to engage with customers.

Engagement with consumers remains prominent and increased cost across platforms will hardly play any deterrent."The idea at the end of the day is to run business which are more profitably and effective and for that we will always look at avenues which will help in achieving those objectives. We as a team will keep on exploring different formats which adds value to top line without causing much affect on the cost. Evaluation is continuous process and we keep this to find ways to drive higher revenue, LTV's which creates brand acceptance and drives higher repeat," said Aakash Anand, founder and CEO of Idam House Of Brands.
